The Exchange District

The Exchange District is a National Historic Site of Canada in the downtown area of Winnipeg. Just one block north of Portage and Main and boasts the largest collection of turn-of-the-20th-century buildings in North America. In all, 62 of the city's 86 heritage structures are in the Exchange District's 20-city block area. The historic structures include massive stone and brick warehouses, elegant terracotta-clad buildings, narrow angled streets, and cobblestone paths. This architecture provides a perfect backdrop for a thriving commercial and cultural centre home to an array of specialty retailers, restaurants, nightclubs, art galleries, wholesalers, and multifamily/condo developments. The Exchange is also the home of the city's Theatre District, Old Market Square, City Hall, Red River College Polytechnic Exchange District Campus and the new Richardson Innovation Centre. In recent years, a new focus of the area has been to attract permanent residents to the area by redeveloping older commercial buildings for multi-residential use in the form of lofts, condos, and apartments. Due to the historic nature of neighborhood, finding vacant land for development is rare and is highly sought after.

Specifically, the West Exchange is home to Waterfront Drive and Theatre District area. This part of the Exchange District offers developers, businesses, and residents boutique hotel options, high-end restaurants, newly multifamily condominiums/apartments along Waterfront Drive as well as a collection of some of Canada's finest brick and beam office assets. The West Exchange is also home to the city's Theatre District with the Centennial Concert Hall, The Royal Manitoba Theatre Centre, The Manitoba Museum, and the Pantages Playhouse Theatre.

The Exchange District is home to Winnipeg's burgeoning tech sector known as Innovation Alley. This community of innovators and entrepreneurs "are revitalizing the Exchange with a new generation of bold, risk-taking innovators, an emergent start-up community and many of Winnipeg's contemporary artistic groups. The creative density of Innovation Alley, creates a dynamic network of ideas and people, capable of igniting the new organizations, products, and services to fuel the future of our city." In addition, the Exchange District is home to Red River College Polytechnic Exchange District Campus and Paterson GlobalFoods Institute.
